Desert Women's Care Surgeons are experts in Minimally Invasive procedures. These surgeries often keep patients from requiring open abdominal procedures. Typically, Minimally Invasive procedures result in less post-operative discomfort, reduced or eliminated need for hospitalization following surgery and get patients back to their normal activities sooner than comparable open abdominal procedures.

Desert Women's Care surgeons produce videos for medical meetings and patient education. DWC posts these videos on YouTube. YouTube videos can be accessed in two ways. First, you can log onto our website (www.DesertWomensCare.com). Once on our site, click the YouTube icon at the top of our homepage to get to our channel. Second, you can log directly onto YouTube (www.YouTube.com) and enter "Elite Laparoscopic" in the search box. This will take you to our channel.

DWC has won various distinctions for these videos including three SpotLight Awards from Cooper Surgical and two prizes from the Society of Laparoendoscopic Surgeons (SLS). Our videos have over 200,000 views on YouTube. Our videos have been accepted for presentation at Annual Meetings of the American Association of Gynecologic Laparoscopists (AAGL), Society of Laparoendoscopic Surgeons (SLS), British International Congress on Obstetrics & Gynecology (BICOG), American College of Surgeons (ACS), amongst many other.

We encourage you to view the procedures your provider has discussed with you. Although no two surgical procedures may be exactly identical, these videos will give you a general idea of what is involved in the surgery you are contemplating.
